Key Features: •Back up saved games to a secure location •Back up files and folders •Add, edit and remove your saved games •Easy to use •Will work on all 32-bit as well as 64-bit versions of Windows Legal notice: This review is based on a digital copy of the software provided by the developer.Monday, January 27, 2011 The New Face of LDS Biblical Scholarship I was touched by this article written by Chris Johnson, president of the LDS Biblical Studies Department at Brigham Young University. The first paragraph says it all: "Among the many articles published about Joseph Smith, his work as a translator and book compiler, his prophecies, and his role as founder of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, few have concerned his use of the Old Testament and even fewer have examined the relationship he had with the theology of the Old Testament. Although the study of scripture and scripture study have long been traditional for members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, we need to place Joseph Smith and his writings in the context of Old Testament scholarship." light emitting diode (LED) is a semiconductor diode that can be used as a light source. LEDs are becoming increasingly popular because of their high power-to-weight ratio. Recent developments in lighting technologies have provided use in a wide range of lighting applications, including outdoor lighting. Outdoor lighting applications can have requirements for safety, durability, and reliability. Another recent development in lighting technologies has resulted in a new class of lighting technologies that use white LEDs. White LEDs can provide enough illumination to replace the need for most conventional lighting technologies, such as incandescent, fluorescent, and halogen. In fact, lighting applications can use white LEDs as their primary source of illumination, with red, blue, or green LEDs used in various combinations to create various colors and color temperatures, as well as light that is either directional or directional and non-directional. Recently, manufacturers have begun producing and marketing white, red, blue, and green light emitting diodes that can be integrated with a conventional socket, plug, or AC source.
