DOUBLECLICK. Link.As we all know, The New York Giants have had a relatively rocky offseason. With that being said, let's take a look at some of the biggest stories of the offseason to this point. The Giants began the offseason with a controversial trade with the Philadelphia Eagles. The trade sent Saquon Barkley to the Eagles in exchange for Sam Bradford. There was no hiding the fact that the Eagles were desperate for a quarterback. The trade netted the Giants an incredible 2020 first-round pick. Now, the Giants can't talk about it because of a confidentiality clause in the deal. But there's still plenty to talk about, starting with the ridiculous amount of compensatory draft picks the Giants got. The compensatory draft picks are tied directly to the contracts of various players. If a team wins a Super Bowl and loses a player whose contract is worth more than $15 million, then the team receives a pick in the compensatory draft. For the Giants, it came down to: Jason Pierre-Paul, $15.3 million Kirk Cousins, $28.6 million Eli Manning, $15.1 million Jason Witten, $15 million Zac's Hunter, $15 million They also received an additional third-round pick for letting Johnathan Hankins go. The Giants signed Hankins for just $20 million over four years. He was already due a $5 million roster bonus, making this move simply a release. This all makes no sense. None. The Giants made the playoffs last season, but they didn't win. Then they trade for a quarterback, who they knew was on the verge of retirement. Then they sign the two biggest names they had available, which were Jason Pierre-Paul and Kirk Cousins. Meanwhile, they release Johnathan Hankins. And they sign Saquon Barkley, who they signed for more money than Pierre-Paul. Let's take a look at the math. Barkley: $23.27 million, guaranteed $15.27 million Cousins: $ 2d92ce491b
