When I changed the hostname in the docker-compose file it was unable to connect to it (even though the configuration was correct). I got around the issue by using docker-compose.yml: version: "2" services: web: image: myweb container_name: myweb restart: always expose: - "5000" - "80" - "443" networks: - db volumes: - ./srv/source env_file: - ENV/web/environment environment: - ENV/web/hostname=new-host - ENV/web/database=mysql ports: - "5000:5000" - "80:80" - "443:443" My question is this: how do I change the hostname in the Dockerfile? A: Use the following COPY. /srv/source RUN printf '%s ' /etc/hosts | sed's/localhost/myhostname/g' the sed will write f3e1b3768c
