Blanca Valentin has been in Honduras for 35 years, is the head of the Honduran Equatoguinean Association and has a good grasp on the situation in that country. She fears that Honduras will look to expel EVS. The president of Honduras indicated this Tuesday that his country could expel the Venezuelan General Prosecutor Luisa Ortega Díaz and her organization, the National Assembly of Venezuela (ANCV). Speaking on Radio Biguá [t] network, Oscar López confirmed that he has asked the Supreme Court of Justice of Honduras to "exert the necessary force to expel Prosecutor Luisa Ortega, taken from her office in the Venezuelan Embassy in Tegucigalpa." "The cancellation of the ANCV functions in Honduras is done by a Honduran court", he said, explaining that the decision was taken against the ANCV's "wishes to obtain the expulsion of a person contrary to the law", the Law of Exile. "The Supreme Court has the authority to expel a person from Honduras", he said, indicating that if the court does not act within 20 days, the government has the option of doing so. He also indicated that it is possible that the expulsion would be effective after the expiration of the 20 days. "We can do it independently without the intervention of the Supreme Court", he explained, that if the ANCV is not expelled, the police can appear to the Honduran court where Ortega is accused. López also mentioned that he had considered cancelling a PAN congress that had been scheduled for the city of San Pedro Sula, since Ortega was not able to be present. The exiled head of the ANCV was the first woman to be named head of the ANCV, having previously been director of the Supreme Court of Justice.
