Robin Turpin Robin Turpin (born November 3, 1953) is an American film director, screenwriter, and actor. His first two feature films were 1988's Ferris Bueller's Day Off, for which he won the Academy Award for Best Original Screenplay, and 1990's Home Alone 2: Lost in New York. Turpin also directed Home Alone 3: Lost in New York and Home Alone 4: The Holiday Heist and appeared in Home Alone 2: Lost in New York. Early life Robin Turpin was born in Hastings, Nebraska, the son of a golf pro and math teacher and a jewelry maker. He attended Northwestern University for his undergraduate degree and graduated from the Juilliard School in New York City with a B.F.A. in film and television. Career Turpin's first major motion picture was the first of the Home Alone series, Home Alone (1990).

After Home Alone 2: Lost in New York, he got a career break when John Hughes, screenwriter for the original Home Alone, cast him as Ferris Bueller in the sequel. In one of his few acting roles, he plays the taxi driver who recognizes Ferris Bueller, who is trying to
