* * * I think that you have an error in your crontab entry. It should be in the format: M-F H-A (Weekdays, 1-7: Monday through Sunday, 8-14: Monday through Friday, 15-21: every day on the 15th. More info can be found at: A: This error message is caused by a syntax error in your crontab file. The command-line you're running is actually executing the following: M-F H-A { */8 * * * * test_script.sh /dir/dir/dir/etc/etc/etc/etc.com -i 4 -o 4 } It appears the last * in the crontab file is being interpreted as a cron command. To fix this, I suggest that you take a look at the crontab(5) manual page. The * character is a command, not a regular expression. You are supposed to use either / or * to mean "every (n) days of the week". If you need to include a * in a cron expression, the * must be escaped (*) with a single backslash: 0 */2 * * * test * -f /var/tmp/foo 2>&1 * is not the same as? The correct syntax is 0 */2 * * * * test * -f /var/tmp/foo 2>&1 If you would like to include an asterisk as a regular expression, you need to escape the asterisk (*) Newly formed Paul Manafort-linked shell company registered to two former Manafort real estate employees — including one who now serves as a liaison to the White House — while Manafort worked for the Donald Trump campaign. The new company, called The Carrington Group, was registered in late March, weeks after Paul Manafort's old firm, Kilimnik Companies, was allegedly purged from Manafort's official lobbying disclosures. The Carrington Group is operated by former Manafort CFO Jeffrey Yohai, who used to be listed as an employee of Kilimnik
