Each of the tables have different attribute names for the same field. The last table only has one attribute, but when I try to use a join, it tells me that the three tables cannot be joined, with this message in the script editor. Can anyone tell me how to make the update cursor work? Here is what I am trying to do (all the table names are like this, just trying to protect the identity of the parties): Make a table with the relationship names (one to many) C:\Program Files\ArcGIS\Desktop10.1\bin\arcpy\arcpy.env >>> in_table = "C:/Program Files/ArcGIS/Desktop10.1/arcpy/Tables/attribute_value_pairs.dbf" >>> out_table = "C:/Program Files/ArcGIS/Desktop10.1/arcpy/Tables/attribute_name_relations.dbf" >>> arcpy.AddJoin_management(in_table, "attribute_name", "attribute_value", "JOIN_ONE_TO_MANY", "Attribute_Value_Name") >>> arcpy.AddJoin_management(out_table, "attribute_name", "attribute_value", "JOIN_MANY_TO_ONE", "Attribute_Value_Name") Make a table with the attribute names (one to many) C:\Program Files\ArcGIS\Desktop10.1\bin\arcpy\arcpy.env >>> in_table = "C:/Program Files/ArcGIS/Desktop10.1/arcpy/Tables/attribute_name_relations
