Jan. 25 (Bloomberg) -- Top hedge funds and private equity firms managed $650 billion, or 28 percent, of global assets as of Dec. 31, 2010, according to preliminary data from Hedge Fund Research Inc. Read more on Hedge Funds » Jan. 25 (Bloomberg) -- A third of private equity-backed banks are run by women, even as the percentage of women in the top ranks of the industry continues to stall. Women senior management in private equity-backed banks has risen from an average of 7.7 percent of the roster in the mid-1990s to an average of 22.1 percent of the roster at listed private equity-backed banks in 2005, according to an analysis of the female executives' chief roles at U.S. banks. Read more on Private Equity and Women Executives » Jan. 11 (Bloomberg) -- The way in which investors play the stock market -- the fear and greed, sometimes known as the mania and depression phases of the cycle -- could be easier to understand after Stanford University researchers discovered patterns in the data. A team of three researchers, including John Naisbitt Jr., obtained new figures on the size of market moves from the American Stock Exchange beginning in 1929. Read more on Bull Market » Jan. 3 (Bloomberg) -- While low interest rates raise mortgage rates and make lending more expensive, they've also helped home builders spend more money on construction and materials. In 2010, sales of homes, single-family units, and apartment buildings reached a record $1.4 trillion. The U.S. Read more on Housing » Jan. 2 (Bloomberg) -- Bernanke and Paulson are back. The early success of the $700 billion Troubled Asset Relief Program is not about to be forgotten. The surge of money flowing into the global financial system has clearly helped stabilize the markets. But a look through the other end of the telescope reveals many reasons for trepidation. The U.S. financial system is still very fragile. The recession could linger. There are no government tools that can be used to stabilize the housing market, at least for the near future. And the drip-drip-drip of bad mortgages is still a chronic problem for the U.S. economy. Q: javascript console.log error of syntax I have no idea of what's going wrong, I hope you can help me, I have the following code and the second line gives an error of syntax, I can't make it work, thanks in advance! function generate_table_of_votes(){ var row_cell_5 = " " + "" + " "; console.log(row_cell_5); document.write(row_cell_5); } A: Try: "" + "" + " " Heidi Klum Photos After Christmas Break Share this post: Heidi Klum took her holidays a little later than usual in 2013, but it wasn't from boredom or laziness. The "Project Runway" host is known to spend quite a bit of time away from the show during the holidays in order to spend quality time with family and friends. The 45-year-old is no different, as she recently took a week off for Christmas and spent it with her loved ones back in Germany. Klum and her fiancé, Seal, first appeared on the "Project Runway" grand finale in December and are planning a life together. The "Living la Vida Loca" singer reportedly knows Klum well, as they shared a kiss on set during their first appearance. It's unclear when the two will get married, but they were recently spotted enjoying a romantic evening on Santa Monica beach. "Project Runway" fans should get a treat when they return to work this week — Klum will be back on the show on Friday, Dec. 20. The day before Thanksgiving is the biggest holiday shopping day,
