Required :Over 100,000 people were killed in the Syrian civil war. Here is how a whole series of events that have unfolded in the last year can, you know, have been connected together. 1. On May 24, 2012, a year before Michael Brown was murdered in Ferguson, Missouri, a video emerged showing a white police officer shooting a black teenager in the back and killing him. 2. Ferguson activists used the video to call for a protest on August 9 in that city. 3. On August 9, Ferguson protesters spontaneously assembled in the streets of Ferguson to demand justice for Mike Brown. On August 11, the police threw tear gas and attacked. 4. The bloodiest day in the history of police brutality in the United States came on August 13, when the Ferguson police, backed by heavily armed National Guard, fired more than 1,000 shots at the unarmed protesters. Dozens were killed, and more than 300 injured. The violent suppression of that single protest by the authorities contributed to the first anti-police-brutality protests in the United States since the revolt in Baltimore in April. 5. Through July 2015, the killing of Michael Brown, the murder of eight police officers in Dallas in November 2014, the killing of four police officers in Baton Rouge in July of this year, and the shooting of Philando Castile in Minnesota in July, all contributed to the rise of an unprecedented black radicalization of the American mass movement. 6. On July 9, the day after Castile was murdered, protests broke out in cities across the country. By July 14, five cities across the country had seen large-scale protests. One hundred thousand people had marched in Chicago; five thousand in Cincinnati; and so on. By July 15, twenty-seven cities had seen
