in particular. I am doing a segmentation project on images with a binarization threshold of .05 `image = cv2.imread(f) mask = cv2.threshold(image,.05, 255, cv2.THRESH_BINARY)` This did not work out because there are artifacts because of the small size of the image I tried the following `image = cv2.imread(f) mask = cv2.threshold(image, 0.5, 255, cv2.THRESH_BINARY)` This works for the majority of the images and also reduces the small artifacts, but does not remove them completely. Ideally I would like the binarization to work well for all the images. Any help on how to do this? PS: I am not interested in anything other than fixing my binarization threshold A: After the comments I have restructured my question. I am aware that my question might not be answered completely, but can get some help nonetheless. The threshold can be adjusted by using the equalize function. `before=cv2.equalizeHist(image, 0.0)` from there you can go ahead and do
