IM-PS300/550 V2.0 Â· 06-29-2020.Q: How to pass a Ruby parameter as a string or symbol to a Ruby class method I have a Ruby class with a method that takes one parameter, that parameter can be a string or a symbol. The parameter, however, should never be nil. Here is my Ruby code: class Foo def search(params) if params.nil? || params.empty? errors.add :base, 'params is nil or empty' end end end What I would like to do is create a method like this: class Foo def search(params) if params == :foo #do stuff elsif params == :bar #do stuff end end end Is this possible? How? I am new to Ruby and am not familiar with the Ruby data types. A: Just use a Hash instead of a Fixnum: class Foo def search(params) if params == {foo: 'hello'} #do stuff elsif params == {bar: 'world'} #do stuff end end end You can make the Hash optional if you want: class Foo def search(params) if params.nil? || params.empty? errors.add :base, 'params is nil or empty' end end def search(params={}) #... end end You can also do this without the class: def search(params={}) #... end When you need to do something with an empty Hash, you can just check to see if it's an empty Hash or an empty Hash with no key: def search(params) if params.empty? && params.has_key?('foo') #do stuff else #... end end Or you could even omit the if/elsif 3e33713323
