On September 24, 2008, it was verified as a virus for its ability to download remote trojans. A variety of companies have updated their AntiVirus applications or installed the Avast online backup to remove this threat. There is no known indication as of yet that this virus has been used in a cyber-attack against a victim. In 2010, it was reported that the virus itself was detected in 59,000 websites from all around the globe. Wheat production in the United States accounts for more than one third of the worldwide production of the crop. The most recent drought had the greatest adverse effect on wheat production, with 37 states having lower wheat yields than normal and 40 counties having losses in excess of 50%. Significant acreage was lost in all the different crops. The alfalfa and hay industry in the United States is the third largest in the world, accounting for a net production value of $8.7 billion in 2002. The alfalfa and hay industry in the United States is the third largest in the world, accounting for a net production value of $8.7 billion in 2002. Alfalfa is one of the most important feeds for dairy cattle. Usually, a crop of alfalfa will have a gross production value of $250-300 per acre, and a net production value of $40-50 per acre. Seventy million acres of alfalfa land is planted each year in the United States, and about 2.5 billion dollars is spent annually on alfalfa for dairy cattle. The alfalfa used in the United States is usually grown and harvested in mid-April in the Pacific Northwest. The primary customer for alfalfa is for dairy cattle, and also used in many animal feed formulations. Alfalfa is one of the most important foods 0298e982ba
