With the first brushstroke of a newcomer - his first touching the body, and that's how the heart beats - the artist has shown right away that he'd like nothing more than to taste the power of visual perception as an art form. And it's no accident that the artist is inspired by film. He explains in detail how his work develops, from his first gestures to the final brushstroke. The program consists of a feature-length video (about 50 minutes in length) and a longer accompanying booklet, which describes the program and will be useful in assessing his artistic achievements. Lately, quality content on the web is becoming increasingly scarce, since on the one hand there is a constant flow of new content, and on the other hand a steady decline of search rankings. This can be understood, since the search engines (Google, Bing etc.) are based on the technology of Web pages. They rely on RSS feeds, web pages and web search engines, which

• The most hilarious iPhone keyboard games you have to play, that will make you want to cry with laughter, yes, it's real! Try not to laugh too much since your iPhone keyboard will get wrecked in this game. The object of the game is to destroy the furniture and the tables using your keyboard. You do this by pressing the keys on the keyboard and seeing how many furniture items you can destroy! If you can destroy all of them, you will win the game. There are many different tables and chairs in the different levels. Use the arrow keys to move around the table and the space bar to destroy. Some of the furniture items are quite tricky to destroy such as the refrigerator, lawn mower and the dishwasher. As you progress through the levels you will be challenged with even more and more challenging furniture items to destroy! Besides destroying all the furniture, this game also lets you collect all the coins to further challenge yourself to get more points and again the more points you get, the better your ranking will be! Go ahead and have a go at this game and see if you can beat this game!

The instant invention relates generally to earth boring tools and more particularly to a side discharge earth boring tool with multi-cutter teeth. Numerous earth boring tools have been provided in the prior art that are adapted to drill through earth formations and hereinafter referred to as earth boring tools. For example, U.S. Pat. Nos. 4,561,709; 4,509,258; 4,382,572 and 4,844,594 all are illustrative of such prior art. While these units may be suitable for the particular purpose to which they address, they would not be as suitable for the purposes of the present invention as heretofore described.

The perceived competence of a service user when interpreting findings of the post-mortem examination of their relative or friend. The aim of this study was to explore how service users interpret, understand and deal with the findings of the post-mortem examination of their relative or friend. The study was part of a larger project investigating understanding and the role of service users in the forensic autopsy process. Semi-structured interviews, using a variety of open-ended questions, were conducted with 29 service users of a specialist forensic service in the United Kingdom. Interviews were audio recorded, transcribed and analysed using 'Framework', a method of thematic analysis. Findings are described from the perspective of those who provided the first in-depth interview. The analysis indicated that service users tended to interpret a range of highly complex autopsy findings as being fairly straightforward in nature. A number of ideas were raised that indicate the complexity of the post-mortem process and the issue of information control, emphasising the vulnerability and vulnerability of service users.
