Vulcanservice@vulcantwin.com New Delhi: Deepika Padukone's happiness knows no bounds. The actor and her husband, Ranveer Singh, have been getting more and more attached to their pet Pomeranian, Amma, recently. The actor is currently on a shooting break in the US and in her downtime, she has been taking care of her pet, playing with her and cuddling with her. Deepika has reportedly taken her pet to the US to relax, spending quality time with her best friend. “She talks to Amma as we know Amma well. We have had Amma for a while and are very attached to her. It’s like a little sister to us now. She has a permanent home with us. So it’s not like, ‘Oh if I go to the US, I won’t see her’. We are always close to her. And she, in turn, knows when we are upset or when we are happy. So she knows when we are happy when we return from the US,” Deepika has said. She

The major goal of this study is to investigate how sex hormones influence men's and women's decisions about whether or not to engage in risky sexual activities. Specifically, we test the hypothesis that sex hormones affect risk-taking behavior in healthy men and women by affecting impulsivity. There is evidence that gender differences in risk-taking are partially related to sex hormones, but the direction of this relationship remains undetermined. There is also a great deal of work showing that short-term disruptions in endogenous sex hormones can affect behavior in many cognitive domains, including risk-taking. Our overall hypothesis is that females with lower levels of sex hormone concentrations (in men, lower testosterone; in women, lower estradiol) will make riskier choices in the context of sex than females
