The next-generation of GPS receivers from Trimble is here. But what makes the Trimble One2One platform anything special? Today, companies that do in-field field survey and mapping in offices or in the field seem to be struggling to stay relevant in the constantly evolving and somewhat crowded market. No one has a clue what companies will do in five or ten years. Add to that general intellectual property (IP) issues, new communication protocols and many other factors. Then add a new specialty into the mix: field survey and mapping. It is our belief that this unique skill sets is becoming even more important than ever. We know that you have noticed this as the average number of field people in the typical company is diminishing. Our view 09e8f5149f
