meantime, however, many other companies in Germany have still not been able to produce medical cannabis, despite having proper legal requirements in place. Munich-based AWK produces medicinal cannabis oils and vaporizers American Weed Corporation (AWK) is a German-based manufacturer of cannabis extracts and vaporizers. The company was established in Munich in 2015, and has since become Germany's largest manufacturer of medicinal cannabis-based products. Through its subsidiary, Fichtner Pharma, AWK now also offers its products in over 40 countries, including Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Luxembourg, and Finland. AWK is currently looking for investors who are prepared to get involved in the German medical marijuana market. Alongside this, the company also announced in June that it had launched a direct contact between German consumers and the company's sales department. This direct contact was specifically set up to enable Germany's largest corporation to tap into the cannabis culture that is currently sweeping through the country. The company emphasized that this would include different language options for German speakers, as well as some key products being offered for free. The company also indicated that it was open to supplying its products to German customers under a special permit, although this is not yet available. The company also revealed that it has set up a pilot project to extract pot from the ground. This was carried out in order to address safety and environmental concerns, and in fact the company emphasized that it planned to continue to expand this pilot project. As the company already has its own strain of medical marijuana, it can address some of these concerns by producing its own supply. Teck Resources develops gold mine in British Columbia, Canada Teck Resources, one of the largest and most successful mining companies in Germany, has taken steps to ensure it has access to cannabis to be used in its operations in Canada. Teck recently acquired a 75 percent interest in the Creighton Creek gold project in northern British Columbia, Canada, from
