I would need to parse it into dictionaries (it's almost similar to the examples above). I tried this (but it returns only the first string in a list) with open(local_file) as f: for line in f: if any([re.match('[^a-zA-Z]\s', line) for _ in range(3)]): continue else; tok = line.split(' ') if not len(tok): continue tok = dict(tok) print(tok) How can I parse the string into dicts? A: The accepted answer is not exactly what you asked for. A Python dict can only contain dict-like objects. Instead, you can just use the regex module, and find all three-word groups. import re with open(local_file) as f: for line in f: if not re.match(r'^(\s)(\s*[\s\S]\s)\$', line): continue # now we can split the line Q: Why is the following definition of a valuation ring wrong? I'm trying to understand this example from the book Classical ring theory by L. Auslander and I can't seem to figure out the mistake here. Here's the definition from the book: Definition 5.3.3. Let R be a ring. A valuation on R is a map $v : R \rightarrow \mathbb{Z} \cup \{+\infty\}$
