You have probably given the licensing information in your project's documentation. If you were to add licensing information into the above service, then there would be a copyright claim on the part of Facebook API, which is not fair, since that part is in the public domain and you are adding copyright rights on it. Also, note that Facebook API has a copyright on it; for example, see Facebook API is copyrightable for both public and private uses. I am a lawyer and I am sorry for the long reply. I hope it helps. Good luck. Kindly share your complete documents of project and all the details of project like Link,Description,Target Audience,Scope of work. This can help others if they need similar work. 1. The GUI is a completely redesigned interface, which has been made to be more intuitive and easy to use. 2. The interface is now in Spanish and English. 3. The library has been upgraded with the following: - Added support for images that can be embedded in a puzzle. - Added support for images that can be sent to the project (sending images to the project will be automatic, you just need to define the folder where the images should be saved), allowing you to send to your project images, logos and sounds that can be used in your project. 4. The configuration options have been rearranged, making it more intuitive for the user. 5. A new crossword puzzle template has been created, enabling you to create crossword puzzles with just a few clicks. 6. An SQLite database file is now included in the program, allowing you to save your settings and your created puzzles. 7. Two pre-defined themes (dark and light) have been created for the template. CruciMaker is a puzzle application that allows you to create crossword puzzles of different types, with simple patterns, complex figure, even with the inclusion of images or embedded directly in the schema definition of the crossword puzzle. CruciMaker, unlike other similar programs, is able to create a new crossword puzzle, crossing in the most appropriate way the words chosen by the user (the designer of the puzzle only needs to write the definitions). This program will offer users the possibility to play the puzzles on their PC or easily print them, with or without the solution. The program is very flexible and adapts easily to the design of complex schemes, for fans of puzzles, or crosswords of very simple words with pictures for children of 6 years.
