vengeance.rhythm.guitars.vol.2Jeep_design_01.JPG Jeep and Subaru have been partners since the first generation of the Jeep Cherokee in the late 1980s. Now, Jeep is rebooting the heritage brand with a high-performance off-roader in the shape of the Cherokee Trailhawk. While the new Jeep is capable of building its own trails in the dirt, it should also be able to tackle some pavement, according to a senior product planner. "We think it is a really capable vehicle, but it's going to be really enjoyable on the road," says Chad Dominguez, senior product planner for Jeep. The Jeep off-roader will be built at the Toledo Jeep plant in Toledo, Ohio, with assembly beginning in late 2013. The new Cherokees will roll out this fall with a 2.0-liter four-cylinder engine with 203 horsepower and 184 pound-feet of torque, which will be mated to an eight-speed automatic transmission. The Trailhawk will be powered by a 2.8-liter four-cylinder engine producing 241 horsepower and 264 pound-feet of torque. "We've taken the most capable engine we make today and magnified it about 20 percent," Dominguez says. The Trailhawk should give Jeep a foothold in the competitive, luxury crossover market. Jeep has been working with Subaru and Subaru recently as the two luxury manufacturers are setting their own trailblazing path * * Copyright (c) 2016-2017 Skymind, Inc. * * This program and the accompanying materials are made available under the * terms of the Apache License, Version 2.0 which is available at * * * Unless required by applicable law or agreed to in writing, software * distributed under the License is distributed on an "AS IS" BASIS, WITHOUT * WARRANTIES OR CONDITIONS OF ANY KIND, either express or implied.
