The game is currently in closed beta, with the first videos showing up on YouTube and Game-Spot. This is the Empire's second attempt at a World Wide Web Empire. They started by building on the community/shard that Empire-Online has and is hoping for a large scale community of players and the network to continue to grow. If you are interested, I'd encourage you to sign up for the thread to follow along with the beta. This is a very big deal, since it is their second attempt. The first attempt failed due to technical glitches and other such things, which has caused a split and a number of problems that have not been resolved. So please give the beta a chance, I'm sure you'll like what you see. Also, if you have some experience with MMO's and playing with other people online, they would love to hear from you. Note that in this game, you have to be online for certain actions to be accessible, since the server is world-wide. So far, there is no way to play this game offline. Hope to see you online, have fun, and most of all, enjoy... And I took a look at the PC version's manual in German: 1 or more Android devices *with* Google Play installed Google Play account and/or credit card information is required. Apparently all you need is a device and you get rid of the annoying "Purchase with Google" (I'd rather have that for Android apps that I don't own) and Google Play Store (since on Android 5.0+ you can have your own app store). Nevertheless, when I tried to install the game, I got a "too big to install" error: Seems like there's a bit of a problem with the game's size? I'm not very familiar with how the Google Play Store works, so I don't know if the manual's statement is true, I'd love to hear if it is. If it is true, is the game's manual misleading, or the game itself? A: The game's manual is more likely to be correct here than the Kotaku article is. According to Google Play, as a general rule: ... new apps are about 2GB. So even though the game seems to be released for Android, it is actually missing some features that are only available on the PC platform, the exact reasons for which are currently unknown. Since the Google Play Store currently does not allow the purchase of apps outside of an app's country of origin, I would check the App Store of the relevant country where the game was already released (or on the UK App Store, at least). Although it's hardly surprising that none of the current Apple computers actually ship with a full version of Windows, each and every one of them is able to run Windows 7, a Microsoft operating system that was released in October 2010. Since that time, you'd think there might be some brand name recognition issues, but the total absence of user complaints about being thrown back to the early 1990s has convinced Microsoft that they'll be just fine. Microsoft recently released the news that their newest operating system is currently running on 500,000 times more computers than Windows 7.
